RE: ROBERT ERLING

George Van Clief informed me that Arthur Johnson, colored, who resides at Middlebush, was acquainted with the above named and might be able to furnish some information.

Further that a man named Pinclus, who "hangs out" in the vicinity of French Street and the Brook, is reported to have been present and heard Erling trying to induce Staub to say that he was in De Russey's Lane on the night of September 16, 1922.

Van Clief also says that an old man known as Tom, who works around the Gibson Farm, often comes around the saloon at French Street and the Brook; that he gets intoxicated and we might be able to get up against him and secure some inside lines.

Respectfully yours,

David Thompson.
